AirBridgeCargo Airlines together with ATRAN Airlines have transported over 170 tons of medical equipment to Krasnoyarsk

AirBridgeCargo Airlines and ATRAN Airlines, air cargo carriers within Volga-Dnepr Group, have organized dedicated charters to transport much-needed medical equipment from Moscow (SVO) to Krasnoyarsk (KJA) on behalf of Moscow Government.

Within two days three freighters delivered masks, beds, mattresses, and artificial respiration units onboard Boeing 747-8F and Boeing 737-800BCF to Krasnoyarsk. The cargo was further trucked to Kyzyl (Republic of Tyva, Russia) to equip the National Hospital No.1 of the city.

“During these turbulent times, we are honored to contribute, both globally and nationally, into a common fight against COVID-19, supporting professionals with essential equipment. Since the outbreak, we have been working on enhancement and adjustment of our services, adapting them to strict safety measures throughout the whole supply chain, and sharpening the expertise of our specialists. Together with other carriers within Volga-Dnepr Group, we have more than three decades of experience of working under severe epidemiologic conditions in various regions of the world”, - highlighted Nikolay Glushnev, General Director of AirBridgeCargo Airlines.

Both carriers have refocused their operations to transport as much medical equipment to various regions of the world as possible. For the first 6 months of 2020 AirBridgeCargo and ATRAN Airlines have flown over 20,000 tons of dedicated healthcare cargo to combat COVID-19 and eliminate its spread.
